Family Practice Physician: a physician who has special training in caring for the whole family, from newborns to elders.

Nurse Practitioner (ARNP): a registered nurse (RN) who has completed advanced education and training in the diagnosis and management of common medical conditions, including chronic illnesses.

Pediatrician: a physician specializing in the care of newborns to teens.

Physician Assistant (PA-C): they are formally trained to provide diagnostic, therapeutic, and preventive health care services, as delegated by a physician.

Important things to think about when choosing a doctor for your baby:

- Check with your insurance plan to see if there are physicians in your area who are included in your coverage.
- Set up a meeting with the physician before your baby is born.
 - Observe the friendliness of their staff.
 - Find out who else in the practice may be caring for your child (a nurse practitioner, physician assistant, another physician.)
 - Discuss how they would like to be reached even when you have a simple question.
 - See if you are comfortable with the physician, matching personality and communication style.
 - Find out the hours of the physician practice and what to do if your child needs care during off hours.
